been eclipsed many times before. Take the Egyptian Pharaoli Raiceses III, who reigned about 3,000 years ago. Ills fortune has been estimated at 400,000 talents, about $500,000,000 in netual money today, but in the days of Rameses you could buy an ox for $1, a bushel of wheat for 12 cents at $ bricklayers received an average of Lcents a day; therefore, money in those days had 20 times the value it has today, so that old Rameses was netually worth $10,000,000,000.

The ancient Egyptian kings used to plate their furniture with gold and encrust the frying pan, coffee got need other kitchen utensils with precious geins. And as for labor, Rumeses is eald to have bired 100,000 men for 20 years to build one pyramid; Jot Egypt is but one-third us large as Massachusetts with a population that never exceeded 7,000,000. For this reason, these tales of Egyptian riches were always considered products of the oriental imagination until Tal Antih Amen's foinh was discovered with all its golden spleador, and from that the historians have begun to give eredence to their nuthenticity.

And you have heard of Croesus, the Lidian king. He longed to lick the Persians and sent the Delphian oracle 117 bricks of gold, each weighing 400 pounds apiece, surmounted over all with a golden flon weighing 800 pounds. In addition, there was gold, allver, precious neckinces and money. the total value of the gift being $10. inducing in the cufrency of that day. but multiply again by 20 and you'll notice that Crossus gave the oracle " little pourboire of $200,000,000 to lick the Persions-and they licked him

And don't forget that Solomon had an income equivalent to $20,000,000 Inday. And then it has been duly recorsed and verlifted by historians that Pythias gave Nerses a little token of esteem amounting to $24,000,000, which multiplied by the inevitable 20, makes almost $500,000,000,--Amertenn Mutual Magazine.

What Use Are Clocks That Strike at Night?

To all those who are victims of insompla, the distress caused by the striking and chiming of clocks (and especially those which occur every quarter of an hour) is well-nigh unearable and is calculated to postpone ndefinitely the chance of recovery, a writer in the Kansas City Star asserts. The vicar of a large church known to me, which has a loud chiming clock, the chimes occurring every quarter of an hour, has been recently obliged, in deference to the strongly expressed wishes of those having the misfortune to live in the vicinity, to have the chimes entirely taken off during the night hours. What is the use, or the supposed use, of a striking clock at night? I fail to see one single use for it. It ought to be as obsolete as the old watchman of bygone days, whose duty it was to call out each hour and the state of the weather. Those clocks having mechanism controlling the striking movements which is not capable of being switched off for the night hours should have their striking mechanism "scrapped."

Here he wrote "Madcap Violet," and here he was visited by George Gissing. who was so delighted with the locality that he afterwards made Grovelane the residence of Nancy Lord in his novel, "In the Year of Jubilee."

At this period entomologists came there in search of stray specimens of "Camberwell Beauty," now amongst the rarest of British butterfiles, but which once bred so alto gether too plentifully herenbouts that the local authorities were wont to pay sixpence a bushel for the dead cater-

Macaroni Chinese Macaroni and other pastes are considered typical and peculiarly Italian food, and Italy is probably entitled to the credit for her early appreciation of these foods. However, history credits their first use among the Chinese and their European introduction to the Germans. The Italians are said to have learned the art of making them from the latter. Illistory shows that by the time of the Fourteenth century Italy was the only European pation enjoying macaroni.

Flying Fish Settles

A flying fish which, by a supreme effort, made a successful landing opthe deck of the Aquitania has won for itselfan place in the annals of natural Dearest Mother:

For a number of years the dispute raged as to whether a flying fish was n mere glider which propelled itself skimmed through the air on the planes tained itself by the beating of these wings like a dragon fly or a helicopter. The Aquitania's flying fish seems to have answered the question. The deck was 40 feet above the water line, and no rush out of the water, whatever the force of the lenp, could, it is argued, lift a flying fish so high as that if it Itself higher.

Those who have believed that the wings do move, though their movement is so rapid as to be very hard to percelve, are now justified, and this flying fish, which was the learns of its kind (the first flyer of its race), should enjoy a sort of immortality for its effort. The ordinary flying fish seldom moves more than a few feet above the water and is generally found only in warm seas, and the Aquitania's dying fish was no ordinary adventurer.

Grass Grown in India

to Make Match Sticks The fact that tumber for the making of match sticks is becoming scarce in this country lends special interest to a report from British India to the offert that a grass is being successful ly employed there for such purposes. At Shalupur there is a factory that is making match sticks from a growth called Surya grass, abundant in some juris of India. The grass is out less Iwa then lengths, winnowed and then halfed in a revolving drum Twen sufficient for Tiest wires of matches.

Shaken through a horizontal siffer the sileha are deposited in horizontal layers, which are secured in a frame for the dipping of the ends, and dipped in a solution of chlorate of potash, sai thate of graenic, putasts of bichloride powdered gypaum and gum arable Hix prouds of this mixture provide for the 7,1881 hours of matches. By nn ingenious contrisance some of the closely nacked stems are forced for ward in the dipping so as to avoid the atteking together of the compact mass. After drying the matches are packed in cardboard boxes. Materials are so cheap that matches sell for 20 !

MICKIE SAYS-

The TOWN DOCTOR

OLD FASHIONED IDEAS WILL NOT STAND THE GAFF OF MODERN BUSINESS

Before he could dream of discovery Columbus had to cleanse his mind of superstition and prejudice. Only the man willing to free himself from the shackles of "what used to be" is ready to entertain the new ideas which lead to progress.

In every branch of science, of business, of art, and even of sport, this Commernity progress is not less in the hands of the discoverers. The great advances have been made by men who explored new fields, unfettered by prejudice or tradition, for a projudice blinds a man to the truth and. too, to a prejudiced man no argument appears reasonable.

The advice of scientific business is to investigate sourself, your business and your town.

New business, new towns, are fortunate in not being fettered with old traditions and ideas, fortunate that they have no barnacles on their ships; but many towns date back a long way and too often refuse to accept new ideas and new ways of doing things. For that reason they fail to grow, fail to advance and keep apace with modern times. Existing in a modern day with thoughts, ideas and ways of doing things of the past, modern opportunities

Oldefashloned ideas will not stand the gail of modern business. If you ere going to grow and do business with modern people you have to be madern, for new-fahloned buyers avoid old-fashioned sellers. The old-fashioned people and old-fashioned business will soon be gone and then "What is, will cease to be, 'r for the town that has not kept up to and ahead of date.

Old-fashfoned does not necessarily mean older people. It does mean those people who, because their grandfather before them did a certain fling in a certain way, think that that is the only way it can be done; the follow who says his way and his idea is always right and the other fellow wrong; the fellow that herause he cannot do it or see how it is done, says it can't he done. In other words it means the fellow who condemns everything which is beyond his range.

The only old-fashloped people who can be considered assets in the world of today are those that retain the boy minds that is, those who are still canable of wonder, enthusiasm and experiment. When these three elements ty four possible of Burma paradio is fail, the man who is out of his grave is out of place as far as progress is concerned, for a man can approviate only that which he knows.

Things are changing these days, and changing fast. Good roads, nutomobiles, trucks, busses and acceptance are responsible for much of it. Raulo and telephone are rushing us along to a new day, and the town that doesn't start DOING will some day be a village of the past.

Thinking people recognize that there is a new order of things, but the recognition is more evident in business than, in the development and conduct of civic affairs. Business wience has changed man from a fighting. hunting, furtive hiped, traveling on fact or paddling a cause along winding rivers, painfully and slowly through the solitude of the great spaces to a ruler of the earth, flying through the air, sailing under the sea, sending messages around the world without in swingers or wires. You KNOW this,

This same science will bring forth even greater strides of development and change in the ways of doing things when applied to cities, towns and comminities. It WILL be applied-IS BEING applied. Because you have not SEEN it you may not KNOW it, and not knowing it, fail to appreciate

Every town should recognize the advantages of this new order of things and start NOW to DO that which is necessary to capitalize on the opportunity; but to do it, old superstitions and prejudices, if you have any, must he wiped out and a realization of a new order of things kept uppermost in

The prevailing color impression of Pompell is the lava gray which old Vesucios painted there at the time of its destruction. This is the color which shades walls and streets from the moment you enter the Marino gate, as you wander past the temples of Apollo and Jove or even enter the house of the Vettil. It is fittingly so, for wintever our expectations may have been, the tragedy of that awful day needs a gray draping more than the utilistic glory of brighter bues.

HIS OWN WORST ENEMY

A good many people were not a litthe surprised when Count failed of election to senior society. The choica of membership in usually made from the men who have hern most artivo in undergraduate affairs. Scholarslilp is not the most important factor in determinius election, though it is often inken into consideration. But Conant would have qualified in every way. He had maintained a very high schofastic average throughout his entire -course, He had been identified with one of the most highly rated extracurricular activities since his freshman year and had shown both energy and ability in the discharging of his dulles. I think he, himself, could not quite understand why he was not elected, and I am sure that his fullurg wounded bis pride deeply.

It was not very difficult, however, to dirine the reason. Conant was a confirmed pessimist. He was what the fellows called a "soor apple," If a statement were made, he was more than likely to take the opposite side and to do so rather sharply and surensurally. He had a sort of sucer on Tols face the most of the time; he sineulated indifference, a lack of sympathy, and a lack of faith in the lutegrily of anyone, and so he came to have

He was his own worst enemy, and this because be constantly put his worst side to the front. In truth, as I scame to know, he was most kind-Scarted and sympathetic, He had high Adeals, but these he concent d by his explicism. We blame failure of mediocrity often upon circumstances, upon enelronment, upon the fact that we have got m had break from something or some soe and not infrequently there is reason for thinking as we do, but just as frequently we should find, if we angtrzed the altuation intelligently, that the fault is our own. THE POOR THING

(by D J. Walala)

THE Bartlett sisters, Emily and Pauline, were having a pleasant time making out a list of women whom they wished to invite to an afternoon tea, which they had been planning for a long time. On a snowy afternoon in a cozy room, no more delightful occupation could be conceived of than this, of making arrangements for a party, Emily was listing names at the old-fushioned spinet desk while Pauline at the window glanced up and down the street trying to decide on the next?

"There's Mrs. Wilson," she said. 'We musn't forget her."

"Tye got her down," Emily albhied her pencil thoughtfully. She was the younger of the two sisters, a sleader, graceful woman past middle age, Pauline closely resembled her. Adden to their good looks they had the refinement and dignity that comes from quiet ways, plenty of means and a taste for culture.

"And Mand Kelly?" suggested Paul-

There was slience while they both thought and thought in a mutual anxfety to leave no one of their neighbors out. Suddenly Emily gave a little

"Oh! There's Mrs. Spickle!" she exclaimed.

"Mrs. Spickle!" Pauline looked alightly alarmed. "Oh! Yes!- | sup pose we musn't leave her out?" "It wouldn't be kind," Emily suld

"She might feel hurt. And we are quite safe to ask her, dear. She never goes out anywhere.

"I know she doesn't, poor thing." Pauline sighed. "Well, we will ask her then. Has she a telephone?"

"I'll see," Emlly rummaged to the directory. "No. She hasn't a tele phone. We'll have to send her a note, Will you write it? You have a gift for notes."

Pauline wrote the note on her dala tlest stationery and committed it in the postman. Of course she could have run down the street, to the bidcous green and sellow house where Mrs. Spickle resided, but it was easier to send a note. Besides, the sight of that house showing against the fresh know gave her an absurdly billious sensation. to all that neighborhood Mrs. Spickle was the one odd member. She was n woman of infddle age, childless, with a husband who humored her foolishly. Old Mrs. Grant said Joe Spickle couldn't have existed a moment if he hadn't humored Eunice. Still, nobody was sorry for blue. He was the kind of man inade to be bossed by a womnn. Just lately he had received a great sum of money through the death of a relative, and everybody was wondering what good this new fortune would do them. Certainly Eunice would never spend any of it, either upon herself or other people. She was a woman of parrow and selfish habit of life whom most people avoided. But she was a neighbor, in the eyes of the Bartletts, and as such must not be overlooked. Having done their duty by Mrs. Spickle the sisters went on with the preparations for their party which was to take place the next afternoon. Their pretty, old-fashioned cottage had a most gracious air of hospitality at any time, and with a few flowers used decoratively it expressed n charming festivity. Cakes were baked.

lee cream ordered, and the best chins, linen and sliver brought forth, By the following afternoon the sixtera had received acceptance in all their invitations save one, Mrs. Soleble had as yet made no sign.

"The poor thing bated to say she couldn't come, may be," l'auline said.
"It doesn't matter. We didn't really expect her"

At three the aisters were ready to receive their guests. Excitement tinted their pretty faces with a sucot color and made their blue eyes

"I thought I might be a little cold so I brought my scarf," she said, smil-Emlly, with perfect grace, ushered her into the parlor. Her entrance produced on unmistakuble sensation. Even Pauline showed an instant's lack of self-possession, but she rallied beautifully. The other women followe ! Pauline's lead and greeted Mrs. Spickle sociably.

Mrs. Spickle, however, seemed to be intent on but one thing-to get to the register as quickly as possible. And when she arrived there, she hitched her chair as close as she could and planted her feet upon the grate. Thereafter nothing, nothing could move her. She cared nothing for the games played and her only contribution to the conversation was concerning the price of coal, the cold weather, and her fear of getting a chill.

The sisters had arranged a buffetfunch in the dining room, and when the signal was given to the guests to repair thither Mrs. Spickle bolted, actually bolted, in order to be the first on the spot.

"Ten?" she inquired. "Ohl-what kind of ten? Oh! Well, I don't mind drinking it if it is made weak-very weak."

It was made very weak. She investigated the cake quite as thoroughly. "I hope its made with butter," she whispered loudly to Mrs. Agnew. "I can't digest just ordinary grease." Pauline's face was flaming, but she met Mrs. Agnew's mischlevous glance and smiled. Emily was not so fortunate. Her hand had grown shaky, and she poured tea everywhere but in the cups. Meanwhite Mrs. Spickle took the lead in conversation. It was over at last and the guests departed. But where was Mrs. Spickle?

Pauline at just found her sitting in her old place on the register. "I thought I'd stay a spell longer," she remarked. "I want to look at your curtains. Did you make 'em yourself? And what dld you have that black streak on the bottom for?" "It came that way," Pauline explained faintly.

then departed reluctuatly. "I don't get out often, but now that Withce, Holt. Dyer, Peterson and Du-we've got all Aunt Jemima's money, I've a notion to see what society is Hke." To the last the sisters maintained their courteous air. But once alone gazed and gazed at each other. They did not laugh, they did not rage; their hearts were too gentle.

"The poor thing," was all they said

Money

PHREE and one-half billion dollars is a lot of money. The annual income of the federal government, however, is approximately this amount. To be able to plan upon this amount year ofter year, its source must be one upon which a great deal of reliance ean be placed.

One of the first acts of the first congress in 1789 was to pass a tariff bill, because the need for rulsing revonue was extremely pressing. Since this early beginning, there has never been a time when reliance has not heen placed upon the tariff for some revenue. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, the total receipts from this source were something more than $605,000,000.

The early receipts from the tariff proved insufficient and were soon supplemented by a tax upon carriages. whisky and a few other commodities. These were unpopular, the one on whisky so much so that the whisky rebellion was the result. These taxes on commodities were given up early in the Nineteenth century, but were called into use again to help finance the War of 1812, only to be discarded in 1817 to be used no more until the Civil war. Since the Civil war taxes upon commodities have been continnously used, the list being grently extended in time of emergency. At present the principal levies are upon tobacco, playing cards, automobiles and accessories. The total receipts in 1927 were about $800,000,000.

During the Civil war the tederal government levied a tax on personal incomes. This was given up in 1872 and no revenue was again received from this source until 1013. In 1809, an excise tax was first levied upon corporations measured by a tax on the net income. Both taxes continue in the present revenue system and were responsible in 1027 for receipts totaling more than $1,982,000,000.

At different emergencies the federal government has taxed inheritances or estates. An estate tax was introduced during the World war which has been continued in modified form. The recelpts from this source in 1927 were but a few million dollars.

The federal government is the owner of a number of securities which are productive of revenue. The foreign obligations brought in 1927, through payment of principal and interest, about $200,000,000. The receipts from railrond securities were about $00,-000,000, those from the safe of surplus property about $18,900,000, while the Panumn canal tolls were about $25

"Majority" and "Plurality"

A candidate for office may be elect ed by r plurality, though he does not receive a majorliy, which is more than half of the votes cast in an election. "Plurality" is defined as the "excess of the highest number of votes cast over the next highest number." To Illustrate, supposing 10,000 votes are cost lu an election in which there are three candidates. The winner may receive 4,000 votes, the runnerup 3500 and the third man 2500.
